BRIDLEWOOD NEWS

BRIDLEWOOD Now EXPANDING PRODUCT LINE

Bridlewood is pleased to announce our partnership with Life Answers Financial Group,

LifeAnswers brings a combined 100 years of industry experience, next generation technology, along with a core group of top life insurance carriers for life insurance and annuity products for its members, for every stage of a customer's financial needs.

Life Insurance: How many people enter retirement with little or no life insurance to cover expenses and replace income once a loved one has passed? How many folks have lost their life insurance once they came off their group coverage? We can help.

Annuities: The number one fear seniors have is outliving their money. An Annuity is a contract with an insurance company that can, guarantee Growth, guarantee Income and can guarantee No Loss of Principal when the market takes a downturn.

Critical Illness: If you are diagnosed with a qualifying cancer or illness, a policy provides a lump sum cash benefit payment that can be used to help pay for medical treatment, living expenses, or any other expenses you see encounter due to this illness.

Final Expense: Preparing for a funeral can be an exhausting burden for your family, but making sure you have the financial resource to cover the cost of a burial and funeral are extremely important for personal estate planning. Whether you've been to a funeral before or you've experienced the loss of a loved one, it is important to know that final expense insurance can be depended on to provide a financial safety net to cover these costs.

Why this is So Important:

"Hello Jeff, I want to thank you for all your help. I'm glad there are still people like you that are willing to go the extra mile to help someone. What I have lived through the past 10 months (since my husband went to heaven) has been rough but things are getting better. You never understand a person's troubles until you have to face it yourself. The life insurance plans you did for us a few years ago has helped me tremendously, because of the unexpected expenses and the loss of Michael's income. Every penny helps me these days, and I appreciate everything you did for us."

Personal Note: Our customers are our "family" and we must protect them as we would our own. Since Bridlewood is the leader in Medicare insurance in San Diego, we have a moral responsibility to protect our "family" from whatever life throws at them.

Don't Underestimate the Old Guys

A father, son and grandson went to the country club for their weekly round of golf. Just as they reached the first tee, a beautiful young brunette woman carrying her bag of clubs approached them.

She explained that the member who brought her to the club for a round of golf had an emergency that called him away and asked the trio if she could join them. Naturally, the guys all agreed.

Smiling, the brunette thanked them and said, "Look, fellows, I work in a topless bar as a dancer, so nothing shocks me anymore. If any of you wants to smoke cigars, have a beer, bet, swear or tell off-color stories or do anything that you normally do when playing a round together, go ahead. But I enjoy playing golf, consider myself pretty good at it, so don't try to coach me on how to play my shots".

With that the guys agreed to relax and invited her to drive first.

All eyes were fastened on her shapely behind as she bent to place her ball on the tee. She then took her driver and hit the ball 270 yards down the middle, right in front of the green.

The father's mouth was agape. "That was beautiful," he said. The brunette put her driver away and said, "I really didn't get into it and I have faded it a little." After the three guys hit their drives and their second shots, the brunette took out a nine iron and lofted the ball within five feet of the hole. (She was closest to the pin.) The son said, "Ma'am, you played that perfectly." The brunette frowned and said, "It was a little weak. I'm left with a tricky little putt," before tapping in the five-footer for a birdie.

Having the honors, she drove first on the second hole and knocked the heck out of the ball, and it landed nearly 300 yards away smack in the middle of the fairway. For the rest of the round the statuesque brunette continued to amaze the guys, quietly and methodically shooting for par or less on every hole.

When they arrived at the 18th green, the brunette was three under par, and has a very nasty 12-foot putt on an undulating green for a par. She turned to the three guys and said, "I really want to thank you all for not acting like a bunch of chauvinists and telling me what club to use or how to play a shot, but I need this putt for a 69 and I'd really like to break 70 on this course. If any one of you can tell me how to make par on this hole, I'll take him back to my apartment, pour some 25-year old Glenfiddich Scotch in him, fix him dinner and then show him a good time for the rest of the night."

The yuppie son jumped at the thought. He strolled across the green, carefully eying the line of the putt and finally said, "Honey, aim about 6 inches to the right of the hole and hit it firm. It will get over that little hump and break right into the cup."

The father came up, knelt down and sighted the putt using his putter as a plumb said, "Don't listen to the kid, darlin', you want to hit it softly 10 inches to the right and run it left down that little hogback, so it falls into the cup."

The old gray haired grandfather walked over to the brunette's ball, picked it up and handed it to her and said, "That's a gimme, sweetheart. Your car or mine?"

Personal Notes:

So this weekend was rather interesting. After more than ten months and three boat mechanics, we finally got our boat running again! We were so excited to try it out, so we loaded up the cooler and the two dogs, and headed down to the South Shores boat launch on Mission Bay. The sun was shining, the refreshments were cold, and the boat started up just fine and ran like a top! Things were going our way.

We cruised around Mission Bay, then bounced down the coast around Point Loma and toolled around San Diego Bay, stopping at Joe's Crabshack for a late lunch. On our way back up the coast to Mission Bay, we had the good fortune to see a beautiful grey whale about 100 feet off our bow. We watched him play for a while, thinking what a great end to the day.

We loaded up the boat and strapped it onto the trailer, then jumped in the truck for the drive home. My wife looked in the back seat and saw one of our dogs, Hercules, passed out on the seat behind me. She just assumed that both dogs were exhausted from their day in the sun and wind, and that our little white Chihuahua/Jack Russell terrier mix, Bailey, was conked out on the seat behind hers.

We no sooner got back to Poway and were backing the boat into the backyard to scrub it down and put it away, when our daughter finally got a call through to us that someone had called her and said he had found Bailey. There is a small window between the cab of the truck and the bed of the truck that was open. She must have jumped through the window and off the truck bed while we were strapping the boat to the trailer and was probably wandering around the grassy area near the boat landing. We drove off with no idea she wasn't in the truck and she bolted into the arms of a very nice 16 year old boy who took good care of her until Kim could drive down and pick her up. Thirty four years and 4 kids together, and I think that was the first time we ever drove off without a member of our family. So glad she was found and is home safe and sound.

HAPPY MOTHER'S DAY to all of you moms!!
